

Photo from POWER project Bangladesh

Transforming the face of Unpaid Care Work through Redistribution

Speakers

Chaired by Wangari Kinoti, International Policy Manager for Women's Rights at ActionAid International

Deepta Chopra, Research Fellow, Institute of Development Studies

Joanne Crawford, Policy Specialist, International Women's Development Agency

Azumi Mezuna, leads on the POWER project at ActionAid Ghana

Join us online on Friday 23 November at 10.00 – 11.30 GMT for the third in the POWER project international webinar series.

The webinar will explore the theme of redistribution of Unpaid Care Work: what this meaningfully looks like, its significance on Women's Economic Empowerment, how to effectively measure trends and the role of governments in facilitating.

With specific examples from the POWER project.

Sign up by emailing Neha Kotwal:

neha.kotwal@actionaid.org

Join the webinar by following this link:

<https://zoom.us/j/2957229543>

This webinar is the third in a series looking at themes being addressed in ActionAid's 5-year project: Promoting Opportunities for Women's Empowerment and Rights (POWER) - in Ghana, Rwanda and Bangladesh. The project is working through local partners to achieve economic empowerment for women in rural communities. It is doing so by focusing on several interlinked areas: Unpaid Care Work; Climate Resilient Sustainable Agriculture, Access to Markets and Violence Against Women. It builds on ActionAid's extensive programme and policy experience in these areas. Please visit the POWER website for more information: <http://powerproject.actionaid.org/>